Council OKs city budget

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The mayor's 1986-87 operating budget of $8,193,207 for the city of Romulus was approved last week by members of the city council. This concluded several months of revisions which included two workshops and a public hearing, and most everyone appears to be satisfied with the result.

"This is a responsible and conservative budget," said Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally. "It is a balanced budget, yet, we have maintained basic services. There have been no major cuts."

"The tax millage for the city of Romulus at 9.2 mills, is the lowest in Wayne County and maybe the state," McAnally said.

This year, the mayor emphasized, there will be additional tax revenue. "We will have a significant revenue increase over previous years with the opening of several hotels in the city," McAnally said.

Total revenues for the city budget are $7,095,006. Together with $1,098,201 appropriated from surplus money equals the total expenses of the 1986-87 budget.

The top 10 departments which receive funds are: Police - $1,931,304; buildings and grounds - $1,060,441; bridges, highways and streets - $646,000; fire - $415,632; assessor - $303,037; recreation - $288,501; building - $284,470; clerk - $271,616; finance - $266,369; and transfer to debt service - $202,000.

Among the significant other departments included are the mayor - $109,919; treasurer - $193,067; and council - $60,166.

"The more accurately you can determine the cost of a department, the more you can accurately establish the value of its service. The city council and department heads have been well informed and understood the budget," McAnally added.

The budget last year was $7,823,000 according to the city accountant, Debbie Hoffman. "This year's and last year's budget are approximately the same. Services have been maintained without increasing the operating millage," she said.

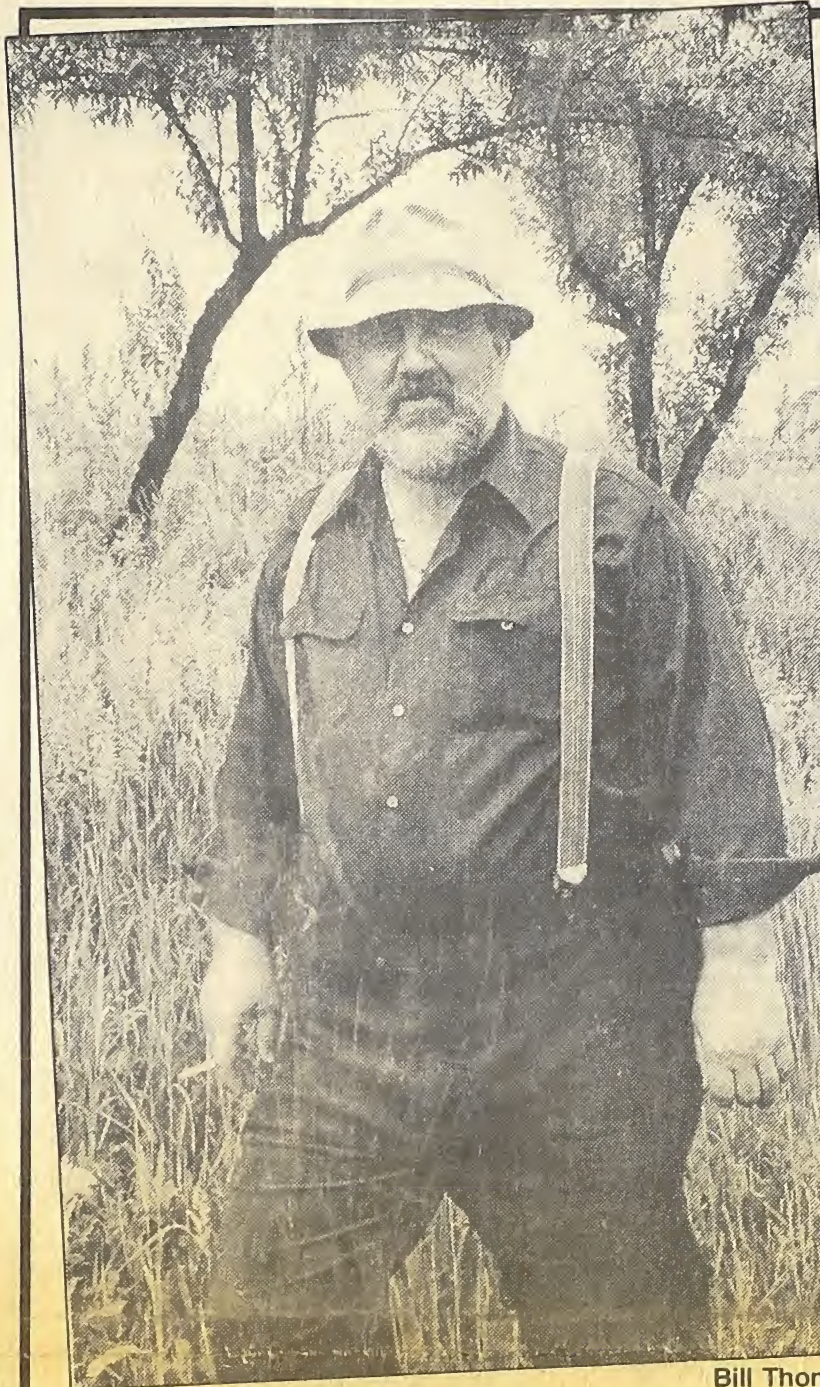

"This budget directed more funds to roads and we intend to hire more police officers. Ten positions need to be filled," said McAnally.

Councilman Noah Bergeron said, "It's a sound budget and I'm satisfied. I have questioned at times if we have the revenue for this budget. It is my understanding that we are using money from the surplus fund. At some point in time we will have to cut back in services or increase taxes."

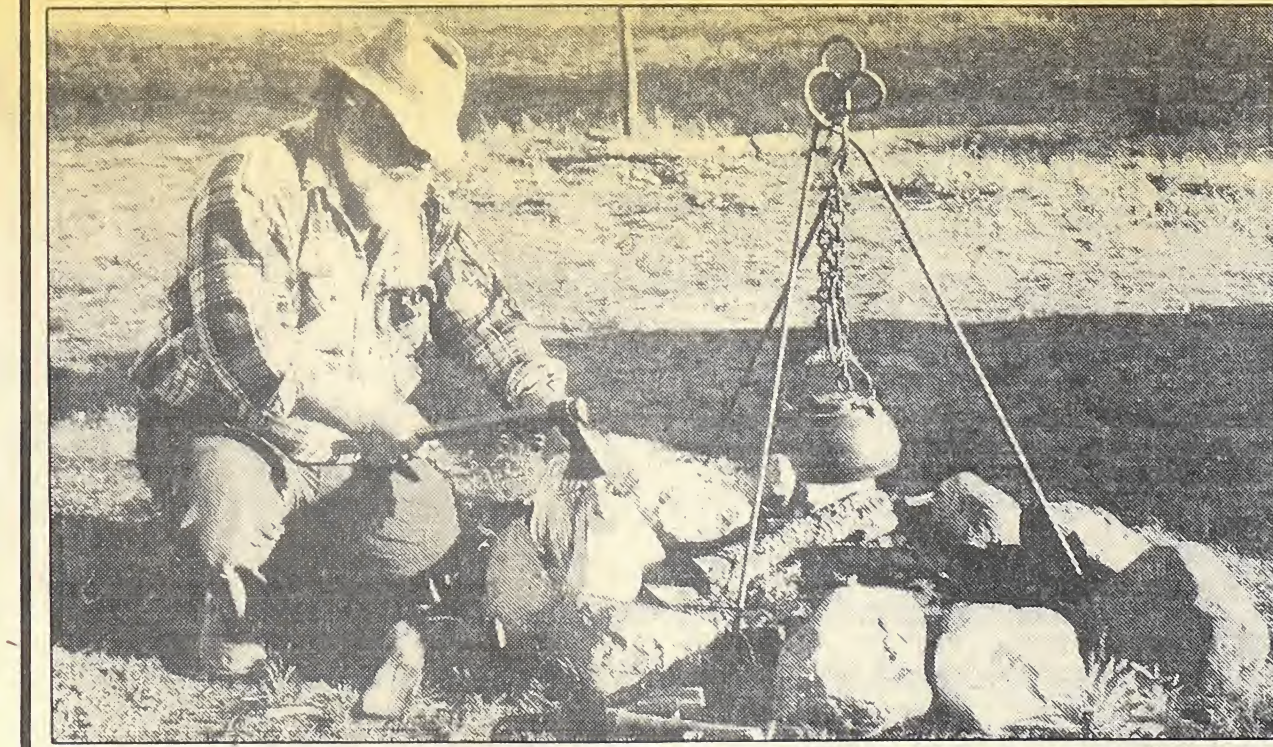

"Each item on the budget has been gone over first by the department heads and then by the administration and mayor. The final budget was a consensus of the people who made the changes," stated Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks.

"There weren't many problems with this year's budget," said Councilman Alan Lambert. "The mayor did a good job. It's a definite priority to make the citizens safe on our streets, so more money was allocated to the police department. It's a pretty good budget."

"There have been no distinct increases in salaries," said Banks. "To effectively serve the needs of all the citizens, it can be frustrating," Banks concluded.

Bill Thomas

It's a natural Teacher traps award

He's a student of nature but a teacher at Romulus Junior High School, after all, for 21 years Bill Thomas taught physical education there.

This year, thanks to a cooperative administration and an enthusiastic student body, a class called Outdoor Education was offered with Thomas selected as the teacher.

Before the year was out, the Michigan Outdoor Education Association presented Thomas with a recognition plaque. According to the association, "The Recognition Plaque is given annually by the Michigan Outdoor Education Association to Michigan educators who have taken exemplary steps to further the goals and objectives of outdoor education. The nominee of this award is truly deserving of such recognition. They work above and beyond what is expected."

"It's a natural," said Thomas who with his suspenders, plaid flannel shirt, curly hair, full beard and large husky frame definitely resembles Grizzly Adams more than any phys-ed "coach."

"When they asked me to teach the class, I said, when and where, I'd love to," he recalled.

"I've gotten a lot of good feedback from the kids," he admitted.

Within his class, students learn environmental issues. "They become more aware of what is outdoors. They can experience things learned in physics or chemistry, like building a fire from the rays of the sun. Today we will talk about fur bearers of Michigan. I try to play wizard with the kids," he said.

His students are taught marine safety, how to fish, hunt, camp and tan hides.

This spring he and his class planted 400 trees on campus. As part of program called "We care," his class blazed a six mile trail along I-275 between South Huron and Eureka now called the Blue Bird Trail. Twenty-four bird houses they built were placed on the trail.

His students made six "Wood Duck" boxes for a tree nesting duck found near the Huron River.

Thomas himself likes to hunt and fish. He will spend his summer vacation fishing. "I'll be on Lake Erie for the month of July and then I'll go up to Lake Manistee. Vacations are one of the nice things about being a teacher," he said.

Thomas was born and raised in the farm country of Pennsylvania in Somerset County. "Many summers I worked on a farm or in my grandfather's saw mill. I spent most of my time running through the hills," he recalled.

He received a degree in English and Physical Education from West Virginia University. His masters degree from Michigan State University is in outdoor education, he said.

He and his wife of 24 years, Sue, live in Huron Township with their two children Jennie and William.

Thomas also performs a 17th century "living history" character called "Quemahoning" before many local audiences. "That's an Indian name meaning 'grove of trees,' and it's also a river in Pennsylvania that I was born near," he explained.

When he dresses in buckskin, fur and carries a musket, is he in or out of character?

Woman killed in auto crash

A Romulus woman was killed last Thursday when her car was struck by a vehicle driven by a Westland man, according to police officials.

Nancy Louise Welch, 34, was traveling west on Wick Road when the left front fender of her 1964 Rambler was struck by a 1976 Delta Olds driven by Douglas James Buchanan, 27, of Westland when he crossed the center lane according to police officials.

Welch was transported from the scene by Taylor Ambulance to Westland Medical Center where she was pronounced dead-on-arrival.

Officers observed a strong odor of intoxicants on the breath of Buchanan, his eyes appeared bloodshot and his speech slurred, according to police reports. A sobriety test was requested at the scene of the accident by police who administered a portable breath test to Buchanan.

Wayne County Sheriff department officers were first on the scene. According to police reports, Deputy George Superino observed Buchanan behind the wheel of his car with the keys in hand and asked the subject if he was all right. Buchanan at this time stated, "I'm okay. I guess I crossed the line and hit something I shouldn't have," according to police reports of the incident.

Following the breath test, Buchanan was advised of his rights and placed under arrest for charges of driving under the influence of alcohol. He was then transported to Annapolis Hospital for a blood test to determine the exact amount of alcohol in his system at the time of the accident.

Buchanan and his passenger Jefferey David Williams 34, of Dearborn Heights were both uninjured in the crash.

"It appears that the suspect was traveling at least 70 mph in a 35 mph zone and that the victim was traveling 30 to 35 mph," police officials said.

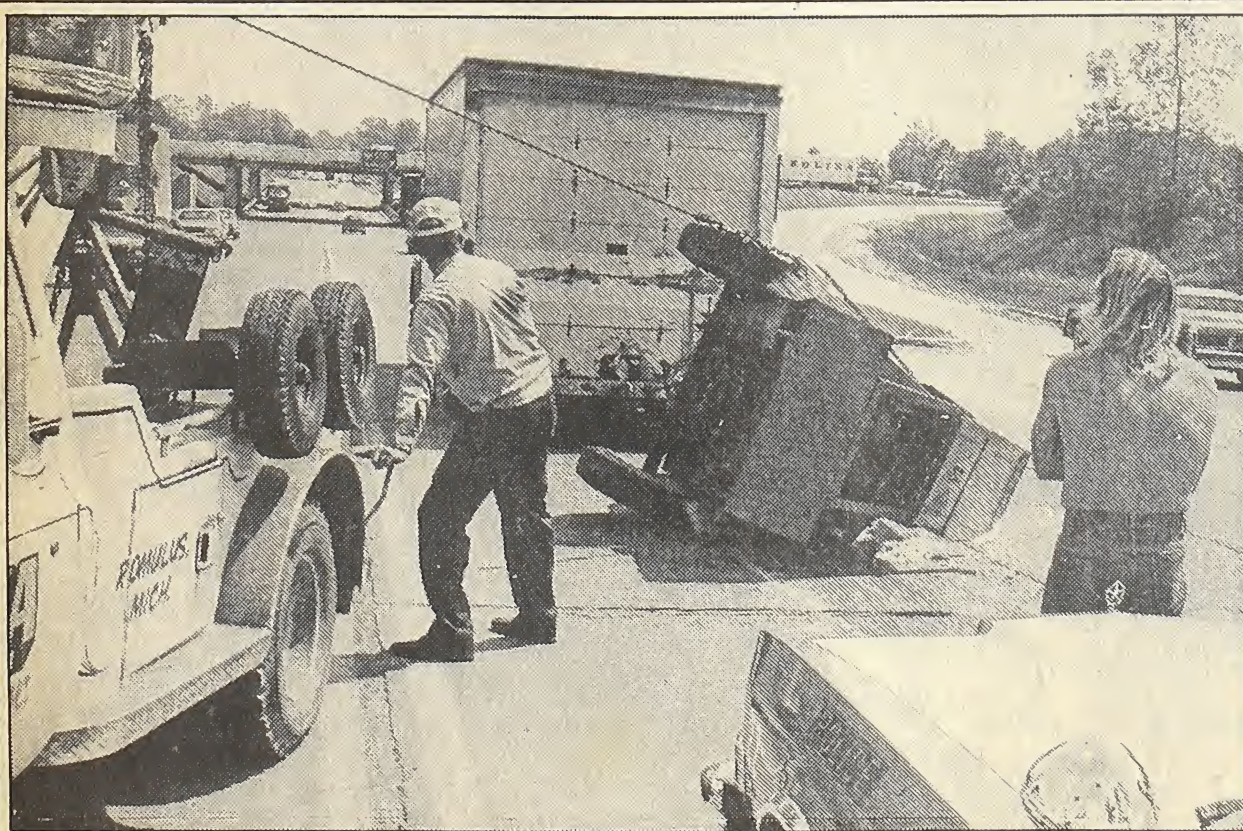

"A warrant was immediately issued for the arrest of Buchanan," said Lieutenant Ken Kraus of the Romulus Police department. "Charges of manslaughter with a motor vehicle were brought against Buchanan who was arraigned in the 34th District Court before Judge Henry Zaborowski and released on $15,000 personal bond. His preliminary exam will be on June 25. He faces a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison for the offense," Kraus said.

The victim, Nancy Louise Welch, was born near Lake, W. Va. on April 6, 1952. Her family moved to New Boston in 1954 and to Romulus a few years later. Welch was the second youngest of five children and a graduate of Romulus High School. She worked many years as a nurses aide and most recently at Roney Nursing Home in Inkster.

She is survived by one daughter, Veronica L., her parents Hester and Ernest Welch of Romulus, two sisters; Lucille Hensley of Romulus and Rosalie (David) Hays of Tecumseh and two brothers; Eugene Welch and David J. Welch both of Romulus.

Services were conducted Monday at Baum-Crane Funeral Home with Rev. Loyd Locklear of Woodhaven Baptist Church officiating. She is buried in Michigan Memorial Park in Flat Rock.

Friday the 13th

Jerry Seman of Romulus had one of those days last Friday. It was his first day on the job with Chris Kind and Company of Romulus when the brakes in the truck he was a passenger in gave out when the driver attempted to exit the westbound I-94 ramp at Wayne Road. "We couldn't slow down. As we approached the stop sign, we laid on the horn and barreled on through making a sharp left going southbound onto Wayne Road. The only thing that slowed us down was the compressor when it flipped over and dragged several feet on the pavement. We just finished a day's work and were on our way back to the office. This was my first day on the job. I had no idea this was Friday the 13th, no wonder why," said Seman.

Michigan's crisis in crime hits city of Romulus

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Police Chief Charles Wilmoth and Attorney General Frank Kelley have something in common.

Last month at the Conference on Crime meeting at the Romulus Hilton Inn, Kelley told an audience of elected officials, social service representatives and public safety administrators that Michigan is in the midst of a "crisis in crime," Wilmoth agrees.

"Statistics for crime are escalating. There is a crisis in crime and it's here in Romulus," Wilmoth stated.

The chief was referring to the crime statistics for the first five months of this year. "Our department has made 35 percent more arrests than over the same period last year. That's good, but overall crime activity has substantially risen over 1985 levels. We have recorded some significant increases for the first five months of this year over the same period last year," Wilmoth said.

"Rape in the city of Romulus has increased 171 percent over the same period last year. There were 19 cases in 1986 and seven in 1985. This year there were seven in May alone. These statistics have to be carefully analyzed so the crime picture is not distorted. We do not want the local public to believe we have a rape problem.

"In 90 percent of these cases, the victim knew the suspect. We are not experiencing a problem with a specific individual or a specific location," Wilmoth noted.

Incidents of robbery and auto theft have also significantly risen. For the first five months of 1986, 32 robberies have been recorded, up 68 percent over last year. In the same period, there were 201 cars stolen compared with 125 last year. That figure is up 61 percent.

"The city of Romulus has more vehicle traffic than most cities because of the airport and it numerous parking lots. There's not a lot we can do about the auto theft problem but

The figures can be computed based on a multiple of 100,000 for population to determine the crime index for a community," he said.

What remain are Part II Crimes. These would include such activity as forgery, fraud, narcotics, weapons, etc. "Part II Crimes are self-generating activities. The more criminal activity the police department ment has recorded an increase in preliminary reports and an increase in patrol miles driven. They have given out 17 percent more traffic citations so far this year. Calls for service to the police department have increased from 5,911 in 1985 to 7,186 in 1986, up 22 percent.

Motor vehicle accidents have increased 14 percent but injury accidents have decreased 18 percent from last year.

"This information indicates that the officers of the department are operating at a high level of activity with rather significant increases in self-initiated activity. However, the crime and accident problem continues to increase even though we have increased patrol miles driven with an increase in visibility," Wilmoth said.

"I don't see any correlation between unemployment and criminal activity," he noted. "Because there has been a substantial increase in criminal activity during this low unemployment period, I think that shoots that theory."

"The basic theme of the Conference on Crime was crime prevention. We have to reduce the opportunity. We are our own worst enemy. It doesn't take long for a criminal to figure who are the prime targets. People need to be educated about how to reduce the opportunity for crimes to occur. During the conference, we discussed plans of action. "There are some crimes the police have little or no impact on. An example would be rape. This problem deals with society and culture. The crime pic-educate the public about locking their cars, using a kill switch or operation identification," said Wilmoth.

There have been two murders this year. Last year at this time there were three. This year, 51 people were assaulted compared with 60 people last year, according to statistics.

All communities are judged by these crimes which come under the category of Part I Crimes. These major crimes are called Index Crimes, Wilmoth explained. "These are used to judge the effectiveness of the local police department.

support of the public because the both the police and public play an equal role.

"The public needs education. They need to understand crime and go beyond the surface. If they see something suspicious, they should call the police first instead of waiting to see what develops. If people don't call us we're out of business. We encourage them to call us. We have only 40 police officers and 25,000 residents. The public is our eyes and ears," Wilmoth concluded.

Police arrest woman, confiscate gun

A 23-year-old Ypsilanti woman was arrested last week and charged with carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle. Two Belleville men told Canton police that the woman had been "following us all over" and that the woman "pointed a gun at us." Police found a two-shot .38 Derringer pistol on the floor of the suspect's car in front of the driver's seat. The gun contained one round of ammunition and the hammer was cocked.

The woman had told police that she did not have a gun when she was questioned before the search.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF VAN BUREN

REGULAR BOARD MEETING

JUNE 10, 1986

Meeting called to order by Supervisor Hamilton at 7:30 p.m. Pledge of Allegiance. Present: Hamilton, Dudick, Foster, Heifner, Hudson and O'Brien. Absent: Trustee Kuchta. Others in attendance: Chief Keller, Chief Traskos, PSD Partridge, Secretary Tadrick and audience of twenty three.

Public Hearing was scheduled to discuss reallocation of CDBG Funds from Drain Project 84-30-TA-03j, to an economic development project.

Treasurer Foster informed the Board and audience in attendance that $55,000 allocation for Post-Smuck Drain cleanup had not been used due to difficulties in scheduling with the Drain Commissioners Office. A parcel of land at I-275 and Van Born which does not have water and sewer available is being considered for immediate development of a Class A Industrial Park, with an estimate of 250 new jobs. Land improvements estimated at $380,000 to $406,000. Reallocation of the $55,000 could be used toward infra-structure (extending sewer and water mains along right-of-way of Van Born east of Hagerty) remaining cost would be paid by the developer.

Comments and questions were received from the Public and Board Members. Will this same offer be made to other developers? Has been done in past. Would there be a commitment to hire Township residents? Approval cannot be contingent on employment of residents. Some members of the Board felt reallocation of funds, to this project, was not appropriate as other parcels are available with utilities (water & sewer). This is prime property and will be developed without any assistance from the Township. Developer already has a project under construction with tax abatement. Other areas should be considered for reallocation of these funds. Real Estate person who brought developer to the Township stated, less than 1% of new development hire more than sixty people. Development provides jobs, increases SEV for greater tax return.

There being no further comments or questions, Public Hearing was closed.

Pickin' time

All eyes are on the berries, red-ripe juicy ones, at the Thornhollow Farm in Belleville which just opened for another round of flavorful time at the local strawberry and raspberry farm.

With the plump nuggets of fruit oozing with perfection as big hands and little fingers alike reach for the reddest and most juicy berries, the first step in making that strawberry pie, strawberry cheesecake or lip-smacking jam. The strawberry season begins in early June while raspberry pickin' time comes later in July.

Potential pickers at Thornhollow are each given enough containers for their harvest and hauled off to the field via tractor and trailer. At last strawberry pickers reach their destination — the acres upon acres of green leaves and sun-ripe berries — and head for a desolate row to indulge in the fortune.

At the farm, all rows are numbered and sectioned off. On picking days, pickers are assigned their own row. Normally a sign-up book is available after 7 a.m. while pickin' time doesn't start until 10 so the dew can subside.

After the fruits of the harvest are collected, the tractor and trailer return the city-slickers to the checkouts, the last stop before those succulent berries hit the ovens and ice cream to become another of the calorie-laden but oh-so-heavenly treats for mankind.

Putting the brakes on safety

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

From the world headquarters of Kelsey-Hayes on Huron River Drive in Romulus, the designers and manufacturers of wheels and braking systems for more than 75 years announced a significant breakthrough in anti-lock brake control.

Beginning with the 1987 model year, Kelsey-Hayes will introduce their "Electronic Brake Control rear anti-lock system," as standard equipment on full-sized Ford pickups or about 700,000 vehicles.

Kelsey-Hayes first introduced the anti-lock brakes in 1968, when they were installed on Ford luxury models, according to Ralph Daily, the advertising manager of Kelsey-Hayes who started 23 years ago in the engineering department.

"The system was dropped because it was too costly. Then in 1975, the federal government passed a law which mandated an anti-locking system on all 18-wheel tractor-trailers. A few years later, the law was revoked after the government lost a lengthy court battle. Last year, there was renewed interest in the system, especially on small cars," explained Daily.

The rear anti-lock greatly improves overall braking stability for a full range of vehicle loading, brake lining and pavement conditions according to Kelsey-Hayes officials.

Technically, the vehicle braking stability is maintained by limiting rear-wheel lock which utilizes an actuation valve, axle sensor and exciter, and computer module, to electronically monitor rear-wheel velocity and adjust rear-brake pressure through fast-acting solenoid valves.

The need for the anti-lock system was demonstrated on the Kelsey-Hayes test track last Wednesday. The track has two lanes with two different surfaces on each. Genite is one surface which has the slick properties of ice when wet. The other surface is standard.

Daniel Wozny, a 14-year veteran of Kelsey-Hayes and for the past two years a test driver, demonstrated the ability and stability of rear anti-locking system. Once with the system on and once with it off, he accelerated the Bronco to 30 mph and while straddling the two types of pavements, applied the brake.

With the anti-lock system on, the truck veered just slightly to the left and never really left it's lane. Without the system, under the same conditions, by the time the truck stopped it had almost a full circle spin. "The system does work," said Wozny.

"The truck remained almost stable under these most unstable conditions. We hardly left our lane. That's what makes the system work. It's pretty dramatic," he said.

"Everyone has input in this project," said Mike Allen, development engineer, who demonstrates the system to potential clients. "We try to understand the dynamics of how vehicles operate through this application of skid control.

This demonstrates the need for such a system in a small truck," he said.

"Kelsey-Hayes is presently working with other auto manufacturers interested in the system," said Daily.

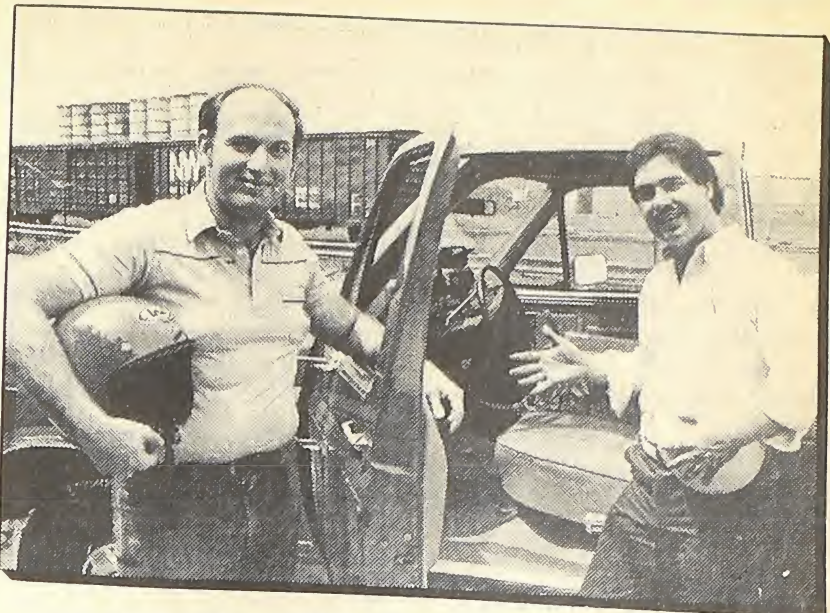

Similar systems are used on vehicles in Europe including Mercedes.

"Basically, you have to have balance between the rear and front brakes. The system senses when a lock-up will occur. In a situation where that would happen, the vehicle tends to break loose and swerve one way or another. If you can prevent rear wheels from locking, the vehicle will stay in a straight line," noted Daily.

"The system is definitely a better design. It's simpler and less costly than anything we've introduced before. That's why it's inexpensive enough to be offered as standard equipment on Ford 1987 models," said Daily.

Kelsey-Hayes in Romulus is not only the corporate world headquarters, but the headquarters for the automotive group and manufacturers of steel wheels.

products to the automotive industry since it was founded in Detroit in 1909. A subsidiary of Fruehauf Corporation, they also manufacture component parts for use in the industrial equipment, aerospace, agricultural and recreational industries.

Twenty years ago, the company moved to Romulus into the old Ford plant built during the Korean War to manufacture jet engines. At that time, Kelsey-Hayes had three manufacturing locations. Today, they have 17 plants in the United States.

The anti-locking system was designed in the research and development department in Ann Arbor. It was implemented into production by the Kelsey-Hayes engineers of Romulus. "The two groups worked together very closely on this project," said Daily.

The production, manufacturing and assembly of the system takes place in Jackson and Brighton. Located here are the majority of the 100 to 200 new jobs created by the system.

The automotive group of Kelsey-Hayes has annual sales of $3 billion according to Daily.

Youth crime is on the rise

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Although there are fewer teens in our population than a decade ago, there is a increase in the number of youths being arrested and an accompanying rise in violent crimes committed by young offenders, according to the director of the Michigan Youth Parole and Review Board.

Willard J. Maxey presented his views on the juvenile justice system at the Speaker's Conference on Crime Prevention conducted in Romulus.

Maxey named five contributing factors in the rise in the numbers of youthful offenders. First, he said, is the "rampant drug and alcohol use." Maxey noted that substance abuse is encouraged in its usage by peers, parents and other adult role models in addition to its promotion by producers.

The second contributing cause of juvenile problems is child abuse and neglect caused by a "no deposit, no return" attitude of child-raising by some parents, Maxey said. Lack of parenting skills, characterized by disorganized and ineffective interaction, was named by Maxey as a third cause.

The final two causes listed by Maxey were "an educational system that cannot cope" and "an economy that cannot deal effectively" with youths.

"... juvenile offenders tended to be youngsters who had first failed in the schools and then failed in the community."

Maxey emphasized a need for more pre-school programs to bring economically and socially-deprived children into the mainstream. He also recommended parenting skills programs such as Parent Effectiveness Training to curb abuse and neglect.

Work experience programs were suggested by Maxey to aid youths to prepare for jobs.

Finally, Maxey said, effective programs to reduce alcohol and substance abuse are needed.

Panelist Y. Gladys Barsamian, Wayne County Juvenile Court judge, told the conference participants that juvenile offenders tended to be youngsters who had first failed in the schools and then failed in the community.

The judge said effective treatment for emotionally or mentally disturbed youths is needed. She suggested programs that could work with both the child and his or her parents through a combination of day treatment, brief detention and the aid of the Department of Social Services.

Barsamian said that waiver of the jurisdiction of the juvenile court and prosecution of a youthful offender as an adult is not the answer to the juvenile crime problem.

The judge said that two questions must be asked of the adult system before youths are referred to it - Is it able to rehabilitate and is it protecting the public? Barsamian believes there is a negative answer to both questions.

"We neither protect nor rehabilitate," she said of the current adult prison system.

Moderator of the panel was Representative Lynn Jondahl of East Lansing. Representative Michael H. Bennane of Detroit, chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee, also was a panelist.

Growing pains

It is becoming more and more evident that a number of our communities are presently suffering from the same ailment. While the symptoms differ in the local municipalities, the diagnosis in our opinion seems definite...growing pains.

In Van Buren Township, sure to soon be a hub of industrial growth along the I-275 expressway, the affliction has taken the form of a low tax base resulting in a near no-win approach to police protection for residential homeowners. Members of the township board appear to be fighting hard for the best and most forward-thinking use of every tax dollar, and the police employees and chief are obviously striving to provide the best service possible. The problem is money.

Men cannot be asked to place their lives on the line, day after day, in a high-risk, high-stress occupation like police work for $17,500 a year or $5.75 per hour. How many would face down armed gunmen, interfere in domestic quarrels and attempt to apprehend known killers for such a wage? A Van Buren officer told, at a recent meeting, of a barricaded gunman. He explained that he sat in front of a home where a barricaded gunman had been reported for 29 minutes waiting for some type of back-up police unit to aid him in his efforts to investigate the situation. As the township had no back-up units available, the State Police provided a car to assist when notified of the situation at hand.

The officer explained that by the time he could approach the house and investigate, the alleged gunman had left the premises and reportedly walked through the township with a loaded rifle on his way to Ypsilanti. While many have diminished the instance as there was no gunman, we feel the officer made a good point. The gunman could easily have been in the home. In many cases, the situation has been as serious and the lack of funding has caused a threat to the safety of local residents...and not only in Van Buren Township.

Another municipality suffering growing pains is Canton Township. The police department there was also the center of the growing pains syndrome for some time, but with increased tax dollars and better management, along with a healthy dose of time, the issue in Canton now seems to be the question of cityhood. It is expected that the question of changing Canton to a city may appear on the ballot soon, after the present studies, by committees and commissions, have produced final recommendations. Canton also suffers road maintenance problems, and snow removal problems and many other zoning and planning considerations which have resulted from the constant and nearly amazing growth within the boundaries.

In Westland, the phenomenal growth, while not primarily industrial, is a major concern. New administration plans include the combination of a number of offices to insure that developers and builders will receive the utmost in aid and consideration when attempting projects within the borders.

Wayne, too, is experiencing growing pains, although in this community the pains seem to be caused as much by change as by growth. There are closings of old, revered businesses and the opening of newer discount stores. Plans for a six-story office building and the construction of a major industrial office building occupy much of the time of city officials.

Romulus, too, will soon feel the effects of changes at the airport, located smack within the center of their borders. While affected by nearly everything that happens at the airport, the city of Romulus receives not a cent in tax revenue from this Wayne County controlled facility. While lines of communication seem to have been much improved lately, city government and opinion seems often overlooked in the planning of airport services and construction.

All of our municipalities will be strongly affected by the cutback of federal revenue sharing funds, making many planned programs impossible. In Belleville this 30 percent cutback in funding has severely threatened the much-needed street repairs, causing a great deal of concern for city officials.

But, we would like to point out, that without this painful planning and careful budget squeezing, the growth could not occur. It is never easy, and this western Wayne County area is now the prime target for development and industrial construction. We will see much growth during the next few years, some good and some detrimental to our communities. But it will be progress, and the men and women in office today must look toward tomorrow. They must make financial decisions today that will chart the course of the municipality for the future. That is not an easy job.

Residents of any community want police protection. Police officers deserve to be paid, and paid well, for a job well done. Streets must be repaired, sewers must be installed and maintained. Industrial water lines must be adequate to insure development...and on it goes. For every decision that elected officials make, there is a cost. They have to make someone unhappy, for there is no way to provide every service for every resident.

Growing pains are cured by time...and by the ultimate maturity of the patient. In the meantime, respect for the difficulty of managing the decisions necessary is the only prescription we can offer...that and patience.

The wait is usually worth it.

The battle of gopher hill

I have just recently rediscovered a game I had long ago concluded was the most boring, useless, expensive waste of time anyone ever has conjured up.

This meaningless pursuit is bad for the spine, temperament, mental attitude and pocketbook. It requires a level of tolerance, physical and mental control, coordination of body and spirit, and a plethora of time and money that only Arnold Palmer and 30 and out UAW workers have simultaneously.

Yes, of course, I am referring to the legendary alleged sport known as "lobber the pill" or ...golf.

This consuming waste of most everything (land, money, time, money, energy, money,...get the idea?) is indulged in by millions of Americans and hundreds of thousands of Mich-e-ganders each and every year.

Furthermore (I haven't gotten this out of my system yet folks so please indulge me) this stupid, idiotic, silly game is boring to watch as a spectator, yet millions also do that.

This bang the ball drivrel is even more revolting to read about, yet folks scramble to the sports section of local and daily newspapers and magazines "to read all about it".

Until four weeks ago I had, under great duress, buckled under on the average of twice a year and humiliated myself by engaging in this ritual of the gopher hills.

The occasion was invariably a Chamber of Commerce outing, or other such excuse used by a small band of people who have sworn an oath to each other. Together they have resolved that "thou shalt go forth into the wilderness, pursuing nature, experiencing hardship, testing dexterity, mental attunement, perseverance, and to otherwise waste the better part of a day and have a good time, if at all possible.

I have, through the years, humbled myself repeatedly before the masses of humanity by participating in the ritual of embarrassment. I have never planned it that way, it just seems to work out.

With great effort, over a timespan of now 15-20 years, I have become nothing less than a phenomenon. I suspect that I am now approaching the record for the most games of golf played without any significant skill improvement.

I have single-handedly walked away with more "high score" prizes than any other human known since the advent of the game. Such awards are, of course, bestowed to the tumultuous ovation and cat calls of one's golfing peers. That of course is then followed by an equally memorable set of remarks and insults from one's family and children upon arrival home. Ah, the good life!

How, you may ask, did a man of your tender age (snicker) accomplish this great feat...staying pure and true to your purpose, to never fall victim to the sinful temptation of the niblic, the demonic cry of the wedge, the spell of the number three wood.

For as many know, once you yield to temptation, and allow your score to begin to fall down, oh, dear hearts, then you are doomed for sure.

Well my friends, and if you are still reading I feel we must be friends, this is my confession. For the last few weeks I have been engaging in the ritual of the gopher hill, yes, I know you can't believe it, but it is true.

What's more, I do not feel repentant. Blasphemy you say? Well it's not my fault. My wife told me she had signed me up and not to worry, I didn't have to be there until "seven". Obviously my next question was "A.M.?"

Did you know that the sun comes up every morning by 6-7 o'clock? For one of us night people that came as a great revelation. Susan also said that the "fellowship" would do me good. Well, I must disclose to you that my partner Steve and I have met some terrific people. Even though the alleged friends I

A little help for our friends

The announcement this week that the Rose Kennedy Respite Center in Westland will close due to a lack of funds both saddened and angered many local residents.

An economic necessity due to the lack of funds available in the Wayne-Westland School District, the primary agency sponsoring the facility, the closing is regrettable indeed.

For many untouched by the center, it functioned as a care facility for developmentally disabled citizens on a short-term basis. Opened six years ago to much publicity and rejoicing, the closing will mean that parents and guardians of developmentally disabled will no longer have any alternative to home care for their charges.

The facility provided care for patients while parents and guardians were on vacation, called for family emergencies, ill, or otherwise unable to provide such care. Many used the respite center as exactly that, a brief respite from the rigors of the 24-hour a day care necessary in many of these cases. The care of a developmentally disabled individual is a nerve-wracking, time consuming, stress-filled existence. Those who provide it are usually loving parents who do not wish to institutionalize their children merely because they require this extra care. But they, like any of us, do require a brief rest from the burden of this care occasionally.

While we totally understand the necessity of the budget cuts within the school district, and realize that the members of the board and administrators who made this decision did so with the overall welfare of the community in mind, we still sincerely regret the loss of this facility and the service it provided.

Negotiations are under way, we are told, with other service agencies who may be able to provide funding for the respite center. We hope these talks are successful, and that somewhere, some civic or county funding is located to re-open the center. It is an operation that deserves the support of each of us for the care and service it provides is a clear demonstration of the type of community this is and a true measure of the character and moral fibre of those who live here.

Ford calls for hearing on newspaper pact

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Congressman William D. Ford (D-Taylor) and Associated Newspapers Publisher David J. Willett became the latest local residents to add their names to the list of individuals requesting the U.S. Justice Department to conduct a formal hearing on the proposed Joint Operating Agreement between the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press.

In a joint letter earlier this month with Congressman John Dingell (D-Trenton) to U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III, Ford called upon the national leaders to watch closely over the developments arising because of the JOA while recommending that a formal public hearing be conducted "expeditiously because of the importance of this issue to the people of the Detroit Metropolitan area."

"For decades, both The News and the Free Press have provided an invaluable source of national and local news and community activities to the Detroit Metropolitan area. The diversity of information has been, and should continue to be, an integral function to ensure the public is fully and properly informed."

Although Ford was unavailable for comment on the JOA this week, his press secretary, Tom Joyce, said that the Congressman hasn't yet formulated a positive or negative opinion toward the proposed agreement between the two Detroit daily newspapers. However, Joyce said, the formal hearing is designed for that purpose — so members of the public can hear both sides of the issue and form their opinions likewise.

"He wants to see that there is a record developed, that everybody has his or her chance to say what he wants to say," Joyce said. "He wants to hear a lot of different views."

In addition to Ford, Willett, publisher of the six publications comprising the Associated Newspapers, cautioned those who seem to be able to pinpoint the ramifications of the JOA while also saying that he too will send a formal letter to the Justice Department requesting a hearing on the pact.

"The proposed JOA could either help suburban newspapers or put them out of business," Willett said. "I would suggest anyone who says they know for certain what the impact will be doesn't know what they're talking about. We can only speculate."

Although he did not pinpoint how the agreement could help or hurt suburban newspapers, Willett agreed that the potential is there for a newspaper "superpower" to completely take over the Detroit area newspaper business.

"It certainly appears as though Allen Neuharth of Gannett has the upper hand. Having worked for the Free Press for seven years, I myself have some insight as to what is both practical and probable.

"Neuharth used to talk about the two-newspaper-on-every-door concept," Willett continued, "and would elaborate on how he believed in that philosophy. That was, however, when his papers tended to be the second paper in a two-newspaper town."

Willett noted that "Neuharth plays to win" and said that this attitude could produce a damaging effect for the stability of suburban newspapers. The local newspaper publisher continued saying that the reasons behind the JOA are complex, so complex that the it makes the proposed solution of raising the cover price of both papers short-sighted.

Nevertheless, Willett echoed the words of other suburban newspaper publishers and said he feels a formal hearing would be in the best interest of the public.

"I think public hearing makes sense and I would be in favor of that," Willett said. "We will be formally requesting the Justice Department to conduct public hearings on the question."

FORD: "For decades, both The News and the Free Press have provided an invaluable source of national and local news and community activities to the Detroit Metropolitan area. The diversity of information has been, and should continue to be, an integral function to ensure the public is fully and properly informed."

I'm beginning to think that perhaps there is something to this so called game of skill. Although my swing is still sporadic, my score is indeed beginning to inch downward, and I think that I'm actually beginning to like this whack-the-bullet silliness.

As with everything else in life, I've learned a few things worth remembering from my recent experiences.

• 1) Golf, like most all things, has to be worked at in order to improve

• 2) You will never be really good at anything you only do once in a while

• 3) You have to have respect for what you're doing before you can hope to start getting better at it.

• 4) Before we begin making judgements about what is a waste of time, foolish, or sinful behavior by others, perhaps it best if we first ask ourselves if we are speaking out of wisdom and experience, or out of envy and jealousy.

See you next week.

The most sensible part of the Presidential (Cleveland) wedding was the omission of the slobbering ceremony of "kissing the bride" by the gentlemen present. It is to be hoped the omission in this case will set the fashion for future weddings among all respectable people. Mr. Cleveland himself did not "salute" her, which however required no great self-denial, as he had the pleasing consciousness that he was about to carry her off into the mountains and devour her at his leisure.

As the Enterprise correspondent entered the M.E. Church last Sunday evening a profusion of flowers met his gaze, but recollecting that it was "Children's Day" he was not much surprised. The main decoration was an arch over which was the word "Wisdom." Under the arch was a pyramid of flowers surmounted by the open Bible under which was the word "Jesus." On each side of the arch was class numbers, mottoes and emblems all tastefully arranged. The church was filled to its utmost capacity and the entertainment by the children though rather lengthy was nevertheless instructive and entertaining. The recitation and song, in German, by Masters Eddie and Freddie Lowe, were something out of the usual line of entertainment and were well received. About 10 o'clock the meeting broke up and all went home feeling that they had been paid well for their trouble.

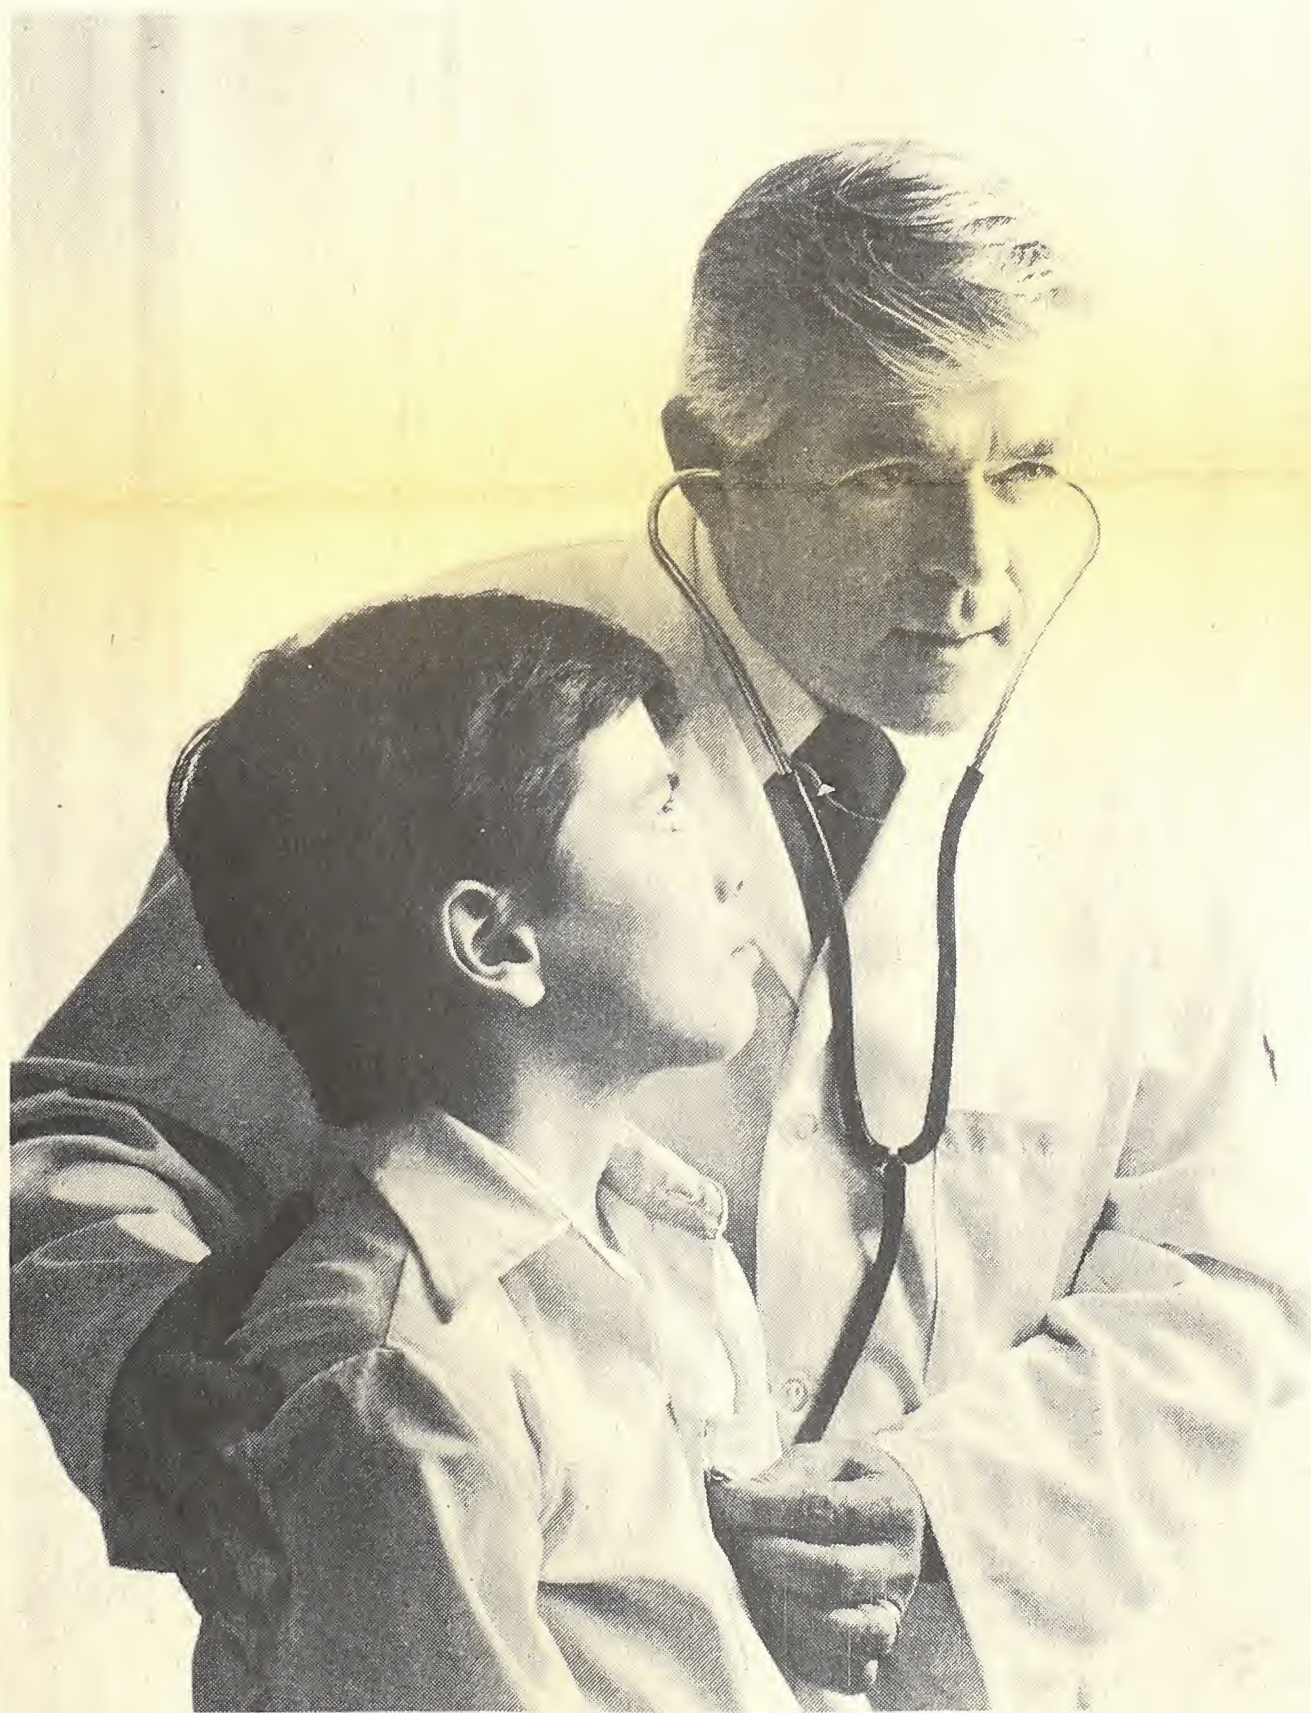

Oliver Moore, of Adrian, arrived here last Saturday and identified the remains of the unknown man (reported in this column last week) as his son, Sylvincent Moore. He could not be removed on account of the advanced state of decomposition.

Many of those who drive do not understand that the Michigan and other laws give the right of way to the pedestrian. A man or woman who is crossing the street is not obliged to look out for the man who is driving the team, but it is to the contrary.

The Rev. L.C. York (M.E. Church) has purchased the tin cup of Chas. Cline which his grand-mother's uncle, Col. Eichhardt, a Hessian trooper, carried in the Revolutionary War. It has been across the ocean three times.

We chronicle two sad accidents for Monday in our little town. One man burnt down his hen coop while trying to fire out the chicken lice and a dog had his head cut off on the railroad.

Pasta means using your noodle

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

Contrary to popular belief, Marco Polo did not introduce the noodle to the West. Now, I know that this must shock quite a few of you food historians but I have it on good fact that in 1279 a Genoese bequeathed some macaroni to a friend. So what, you ask?

Hey, if you're not "into" macaroni, just about every nationality has its own origin of pasta. The Chinese have wonton and shiu mai. The Germans have spatzle. The Jewish have kreplach. The Poles, their pierogi. Even Middle Easterners have calsones. So let's drop the old adage that the discussion of noodles automatically reverts to the Italian heritage.

Just what is a noodle? Is it an individual piece of shaped dough? Is it long? Short? Flat? Tubular? The English word noodle (like French nouille and German nudel) comes from the Latin word nodus, or knot. This refers to the way long pasta strands tangle when cooked.

The Food and Drug Administration describes a noodle as: "a class of food . . . prepared by drying formed units of dough made from flour . . . or any combination of eggs . . . with or without water." Macaroni, for instance, cannot be called a noodle because it does not contain egg. Usually, when you see pasta products that do not contain egg, they are called "imitation" or "alimentary paste" products.

Noodles are made from flour or vegetable starch, either of which are mixed with a liquid to form a dough, then divided into individual strands or pieces by cutting. Flour is milled from wheat or other cereal grain and contains both protein and carbohydrates. It is the proportion of these two ingredients that determines the texture of the finished product. The more protein in the flour, the sturdier, chewier and more "shapeable" will be noodle made from it. The more carbohydrates, the lighter, more delicate it becomes.

What enables noodles to hold their shape is gluten. The more protein in the flour, the more gluten it will develop when moistened. Eggs coat the flour granules and interfere with the gluten formation so they act as a tenderizer in noodles. That is why egg noodles are always flat. If shaped, they would tend to over-soften and get mushy when cooked.

The highest protein flour and thus most desirable for making shaped noodles is semolina. Did you know that in 1967, Italy passed a law that states that all pasta must be made from semolina? Semolina flour is milled from durum wheat which is golden and harder than other wheat. Durum wheat is grown in the Mediterranean, Russia, Canada and in the Midwest - but not in the Far East. This is why you see lots of rice noodles and noodles made from various other vegetable starches in the Orient.

There are hundreds of varieties of noodles. Everything from the thinnest vermicelli to the flattest lasagne. All the information in the world on noodles, however, will not help you during the cooking process if you do not understand the term "al dente." "Al dente" means that the noodle should still have a certain texture between the teeth and not be cooked soft. Usually spaghetti cooks in 15 minutes but no exact time can ever be given since different products have more or less gluten and thickness.

There are some general instructions for the novice to follow when cooking noodles. The thicker the form or greater the diameter, the greater the cooking time. Tubular pastas which permit water to run through cook in less time. In no case should the cooking time be shorter than eight minutes or longer than 12.

But what do you start with? First, off get the largest pot you can find. Two-quart saucepans hardly hold enough pasta for two. Ample water prevents starch from adhering to the pasta and helps keep the shape of the individual strands.

Bring the water to a good, rolling boil. Salt can be added as can butter or oil, if desired. (Salted water boils faster because it's heavier, seriously!)

Once the water is boiling, put all the pasta in at once. This prevents uneven hardness. Stir at once to loosen the strands. Keep the water boiling and begin counting from the first boil.

As a generalized rule, at the end of eight minutes, I taste my noodles and, if needed, continue cooking. Packaged noodles (such as spaghetti, vermicelli, etc.) usually take about nine minutes, but only you can be the judge.

It is pure Italian truth and tradition that the pasta is "al dente" when a strand, thrown against a smooth flat wall, sticks. Now, when guests come by, they frequently remark about the crazy wallpaper designs . . .

Almost as important is the draining process. Use a colander or large sieve. (Minnow buckets work well, in a pinch!) If the pasta has boiled in an abundance of water, there is no need to rinse. Only when pasta has been cooked in a small pot or in too little water should it be rinsed, and then, under cold water to remove the excess starch and help separate the strands.

Shake well and always try to get the pasta as dry as possible to avoid thinning out the sauce.

Whatever your reasons, make today a noodle day.

Bon appetit!

BASIC HOMEMADE NOODLE DOUGH
(Eight to 10 servings)
1 pound sifted semolina flour
pinch of salt
4 eggs
1 egg yolk

Sift flour and salt together. Make a mound of flour and drop eggs in, one at a time, mixing in well with your fingers. Knead until firm. Allow to rest for two hours. (The pasta, not you!) Divide dough into four pieces and roll out as thin as possible on a floured board. Cut into desired widths.

CHILLED SUMMER PASTA SALAD
(Serves four to six)
4 cups cooked noodles, drained
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 bunch green onions, chopped
1 green pepper, diced
1 red pepper, diced
1 cup homemade Italian salad dressing (bottled will do)

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients and toss gently. Cover and refrigerate for at least two hours, tossing once. The longer this has a chance to "marinate," the better it will taste.

Looking for something that's high in protein, delicious, easy and cheap? Try this:

CREAMY NOODLE EGG BAKE
(Serves four to six)
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 butter or margarine
2 cups cottage cheese or ricotta
2 cups plain yogurt or milk or sour cream (you decide how fattening it should be!)
3 eggs, beaten
dash salt and pepper
10 ounces cooked pasta
2 cups homemade or bottled spaghetti sauce
Saute onion and celery in butter or margarine. Combine cheese, yogurt, eggs and any spices. Stir in pasta, sauteed vegetables and place in a greased 9 x 13 baking dish. Spread spaghetti sauce over top and bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

Can be made ahead and either refrigerated or frozen. In addition, numerous other foods can be added, such as steamed vegetables, cooked bacon, chopped hard boiled eggs and different herbs like dill, tarragon, basil or oregano.

NOODLED CRAB AU GRATIN
(Serves four)
12 ounces cooked spinach noodles, drained
3 cups sauce Vin Blanc
1 1/2 pounds crabmeat
1 pound Swiss Gruyere cheese, grated

Place cooked spinach noodles in a lightly greased casserole. Sprinkle crabmeat over the noodles and cover with the Vin Blanc sauce. Sprinkle with freshly grated cheese and bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until heated throughout and cheese has melted. Pass under the broiler for a gentle browning.

STRAWBERRY SAUCE

3 c. fresh strawberries, sliced
2 1/2 Tbsp. sugar
2 1/2 tsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. almond extract

Combine strawberries and sugar; cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. Drain the strawberries, reserving juice, set aside. Add enough water to strawberry juice to make 3/4 c. Combine juice and cornstarch in a saucepan, stirring until cornstarch is dissolved. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Stir in strawberries and almond extract. Chill. YIELD: 2 cups.

Record 26-3 year for Rockets

Glenn's dream season ends in state semis with 1-0 loss

By KEITH DeMOLAY
ANP Special Writer

The hurt showed in the 18-year-old eyes of Steve Irwin as he sat in the dugout of Western Michigan University's Hyman Field early Friday evening.

In front of him, on the diamond, the Birmingham Brother Rice baseball team was celebrating their 1-0 victory over the Rockets of Westland John Glenn that propelled the Birmingham club into the state finals of the Class A baseball championship.

It wasn't the fact that Irwin had suffered his first loss of the season; the hurt was there because his team, the Rockets, were not going to realize their dream of a state championship.

Glenn had reached the state semi-finals on the strength of the pitching of both Irwin and sophomore Clint Straub and some timely hitting and outstanding defense.

The Westlanders got the strong pitching they needed from Irwin in this game as he fired a four-hitter and fanned nine batters.

But Glenn's explosive hitting, which had allowed them to score 43 runs in the five previous tournament games, could only muster five hits off of Rice ace, Steve Schultz.

"It was probably the fastest game in my whole coaching career," said Glenn coach Norm Hoenes who was visibly shaken after the game. "It was before snapping out of the slump and finding the right stuff for the state tournament. After that short stumble, Rice came back stronger with good pitching and clutch hitting. The Warriors parlayed that into a 1-0 victory on Friday afternoon as a huge Glenn crowd, swelled by the entire Glenn staff and several prominent alumni, attended the game. But Schultz was at his best as he retired Rocket after Rocket.

"Schultz was very effective with us," said Hoenes. "He pitched us up and down and away. He's very crafty. He pitched a sound game against us."

Rice got its only run in the second inning when Tom Giroux doubled down the right field line. Giroux took third on a pitch in the dirt. Then Irwin got tough and collected his second out, including fanning one batter after falling behind three balls and no strikes.

But Irwin couldn't get past

Chris Alexander who lined a single to left to drive in Giroux for the only run that Rice would need in this game.

Usually Irwin is the pitcher who needs only one run to win; this time it was Schultz who only needed that one run.

Twice, Schultz reached back for that something extra as the Rockets threatened to take control of the game. A couple of walks in the third put the Rockets in good shape but Schultz induced a double play and got himself out of that jam.

Again in the fourth, the Westlanders put two men aboard, courtesy of a Jim Kenyon sing-

Henry is named Romulus High's head cage coach

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Dan Henry has a tough act to follow.

And the former Romulus High assistant basketball coach knows it.

The 34-year-old Henry recently was named to fill the vacancy of head cage coach at Romulus, a school that captured the Class A state championship last season. Henry will be replacing Al Wilkerson, who stepped down to spend more time with his family and to become the best school counselor in the state.

"I know it's a tough act to follow," said Henry who was busy Monday with his summer cage clinic. "Winning the state title is what it's all about, and we're going to have a tough job carrying on the excellent tradition established here."

Henry has served as assistant coach to Wilkerson for the past six years. He knows the Eagles, their talents and their high expectations.

And, in 1986-87 the Eagles won't have 6-8 All-American

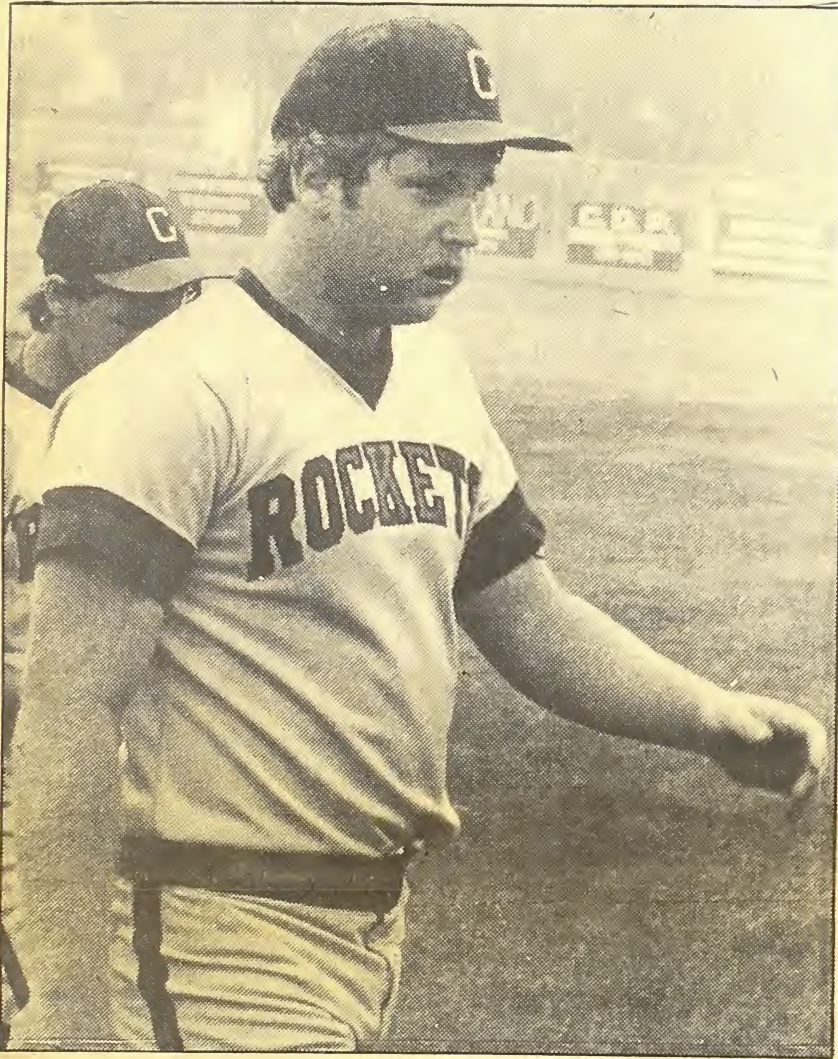

Terry Mills or 6-0 guard Stevie Glenn to come to their rescue in the clutch with the baskets that lifted them to their incredible 24-2 won-lost season which included their first regional and state titles.

Henry will have three key holdovers from that championship line-up: 6-6 Juan Street; 6-1 Billy Johnson, and 6-2 Samuels Keith - all of whom played major roles in the Eagles' success story.

Henry believes that being at the top will help the returning players "confidence" this year.

"They know what it takes to get there and you can see the confidence right now in what they are doing. They're working hard," said Henry. "I know it's going to be tough without Mills and Glenn, but you don't look back. Just ahead."

Raised in Redford, Henry attended Redford Union High and Eastern Michigan University. He coached basketball in the Willow Run and Howell School Districts before accepting the assistant's job at Romulus. This will be Henry's first head coaching position.

Winners & losers

With a string of 10 consecutive victories behind him, Westland John Glenn's ace hurler Steve Irwin walks dejectedly off the field after sustaining his first setback - a 1-0 loss in the semi-finals of the Class A state tournament against Birmingham Brother Rice. Irwin will be wearing a Eastern Michigan University uniform next season, leaving behind him a string of records that some feel will never be broken.

'It's been a great year!'

Some coaches wait a lifetime before their dream team comes along.

For Norm Hoenes, the head baseball coach at Westland John Glenn, his 1986 club personified what "high school sports and athletics are all about." The club was made up of championship fighters.

"I can't say enough about this club," Hoenes commented. "The chemistry was there. They never choked. They never gave up and when you win 26 out of 29 games, that record speaks for itself."

Hoenes concluded his 20th season as the Rockets head coach, but it was the first time one of his teams ever reached the "Final Four" - two words that signify a lot of work and sweat. The final four are the survivors of the state playoffs which include literally hundreds of high school teams. Unfortunately for the Rockets they met and lost a 1-0 duel with Birmingham Brother Rice in the semi-final rounds of the playoffs held Friday afternoon at Western Michigan University. Subsequently, Birmingham dropped a 6-5 decision the following day to Ypsilanti High in the state championship game.

Hoenes believes that Ypsilanti - with its tremendous speed - would "have caused us a lot more problems and headaches than did Rice. I don't want to take anything away from Rice, they have an excellent team but I felt if we played them five times we would win four of those five. I wish we could play them again."

The 1986 Rockets shattered the 21-10 won-lost record of their counterparts of 1971 who also won a pound senior Steve Irwin who has been phenomenal this season. Irwin's lone setback in 11 trips to the mound this season was against Rice, and that was a 1-0 verdict. He has chalked up 132 strikeouts in 11 ballgames and has a 0.86 earned run average.

What seems so ironic is that he wasn't drafted by the pros. But he did sign a letter of intent to play for Eastern Michigan University and that scholarship alone could be valued at $20,000.

"Steve is one of the finest players I have ever coached."

Cougars signing up for football

In the midst of the baseball season, one organization is already thinking football.

That organization is the Belleville Cougars who are seeking prospective players for the 1986 campaign.

The Cougars are asking all youngsters who wish to play this season to sign up during the Strawberry Festival, June 20-21-22, at the "big tent" located on the grounds of St. Anthony's Church.

Those signing up early will be eligible for a discount on the registration fee.

Hoenes

Hoenes said. "He has a tremendous career ahead of him, and I don't think the pros overlooked him, it's just that they knew he had signed to attend EMU."
Glenn's fans also bid farewell to several other outstanding players including outfielders Tom Rogala, Chuck Hammontree and Jim Kenyon. Senior pitcher Shawn Dunford, who racked up a 4-1 record, and reserve infielder Kurt Golemo also have graduated.

Although the Rockets didn't vote on a Most Valuable Player, the MVP would have probably gone to Irwin who "did just about everything for this team."
"We came two victories short of what all prep coaches dream about - winning a state title," says Hoenes, "but, when you reach that far you really know you have one of the finest teams in the state. No one can ever deny that. This team will not be forgotten for many years to come."

An exciting year

There was a lot to cheer about this year at Westland John Glenn where the Rockets of Coach Norm Hoenes captured their first Western Lakes Association baseball championship en route to Class A district and regional championships. The Westlanders came two victories short of winning the coveted state title when they dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to Birmingham Brother Rice in the semi-finals Friday at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. Rice was edged by Ypsilanti, 6-5, in the title game.

Glenn's dream season ends le and a Mike Wells walk. But again Schultz bore down and got a strikeout and a pop-up to get out of the inning.

And, finally in the seventh, with the Rocket fans enthusiastically applauding, Kenyon singled again and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Shawn Wilson. A walk to Wells put two men on with only one out.

The fans smelled a rally brewing, but Schultz again snuffed it out with a strikeout and a grounder that ended the threat and gave the Birmingham team a shot at Ypsilanti in "The season was a great one. The loss will probably hurt for awhile - but you can't take away the league, the district, and regional titles from us. I'm very proud of this team."

Coach Norm Hoenes

the championship game. Ypsilanti however managed to turn back Rice, 6-5, to capture the coveted Class A state crown on Saturday.

As Rice celebrated its semifinal victory, the Rockets sat stunned not wanting to believe that their record season had suddenly come to an end - two victories away from what has been a phenomenal year.

"This season was a great one," Hoenes noted, who brought the curtains down on his 20th year as head coach of the Rockets. "The loss will probably hurt for awhile --but you can't take away the league, district, regional titles from this group. I'm very proud of this team."

But, sometime in the future when the hurt's gone - be it weeks or months --the 17 members of the Glenn baseball team and batboy Voc Koos will realize that the 1986 season was, in the words of Winston Churchill, "their finest hour."

Coach gets Citizen Award

Joe Cooley of Wayne struck out 16 years ago when he was trying to find a baseball team to join. So he started coaching instead and wound up in a whole different ball game.

Cooley, a Michigan Bell employee, recently received the telephone company's "Good Citizen Award" for his volunteer work in the community.

The Good Citizen Program each month honors one current or retired Bell employee living in Michigan for contributions and service to the local community. Recipients are awarded a $100 savings bond and a framed certificate.

The 16-year Michigan Bell veteran is a repair technician in Romulus and devotes 35 hours a week in the summer teaching young boys how to play ball.

"You can take kids who have never had a ball in their hands and watch them progress," said Cooley, who started playing ball at age 10 and later played on a semi-pro team in Tennessee.

When he came to Michigan in 1967 and couldn't find a team to play on, he began "teaching kids fundamentals - how to pitch, field, hit, steal, and especially, how to be a good sport."

Three years ago, Cooley and some of his friends who didn't think young boys should have to pay to play ball, formed their own baseball league - Westland Federation Baseball.

The organization has grown to include 16 teams of boys from 8 to 16 years of age. And all of them play baseball for free. Cooley and his friends pay the bills with a weekly bingo - spending the money on uniforms, bats, balls and other expenses.

"All of the money from the bingo goes to the kids," he said. "Each player has two sets of uniforms, a bat bag and helmet. We go first class."

In return, Cooley's team - 11 and 12-year-old players - practice almost every night. The record shows it.

The team's won-lost record for the past three years is 89-17. The youngsters played in the World Series in 1984 and 1985. And last year, the team was ranked third in the country.

Wayne's Joe Cooley (center) has attracted a lot of attention as an outstanding coach and human being.

Last call for distance runners

With the Strawberry Festival's kick-off ceremony scheduled for Friday night in Belleville, organizers of the Ninth Annual Strawberry 10-kilometer and 1-mile "Fun Run" are issuing their final call.

The 10-K is scheduled for 8 a.m. on Saturday and the 1-mile event immediately afterward. Registration will be accepted beginning at 7 a.m., at Belleville High School, 501 W. Columbia Avenue. The run is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville.

There is a $3 entry fee and an additional $4 if the participant wishes to purchase a Strawberry Festival T-Shirt. Medals will be awarded to the top two finishers in each of several age group divisions. Those wishing further information should contact William Chizmar, 13770 Haggerty Road, Belleville, or telephone 697-8483 between 8:20 a.m. and 4:20 p.m. for further information.

Taste makes waist

Local groups strive to take off pounds

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Put aside the grapefruits, protein supplements and popcorn nourishments and turn to social interaction and support as an aid in losing those unloveable "love handles."

That's the word from several area dieting and health groups which point out that dieting alone isn't the answer to permanent weight loss. While it's true that even the most "health conscious" individual has feasted or fasted on huge amounts of liquids, proteins, carbohydrates or fats in one fad diet or another, the key to success isn't always in what you eat, according to members of the groups.

Edna Mae Gregory, a member of one of the local groups, attributes the loss of 22 pounds to the support of fellow members instead of the diet program alone.

TAKE OFF POUNDS SENSIBLY
tops

GREGORY has been a member of the Belleville chapter of Take Off Pounds Sensibly, T.O.P.S. for short, since 1973. Club members meet about once each week in a local church and listen to guest speakers address various health topics, socialize and offer dieting support to fellow members as well as exchange good recipes, all of which are designed to make low-calorie, taste-tempting dishes, of course.

"The purpose is to try to reinforce people to lose weight," said Gregory. "We also try to get them to improve their self-image as far as their health."

Each meeting starts with all members facing the dreaded scale which tells no lies. Although no fine or penalty is due when the scale tips more than the week prior, club members are offered an additional serving of support and encouragement through week by phone calls and letters from other members.

In addition, those dieters that manage to take off pounds consistently earn silver medallions that can be collected on a charm bracelet. But medallions and small cash bonuses aren't the pinnacle of success for T.O.P.S. members as the ultimate goal is promotion to a K.O.P.

As the initials would clearly reveal, Keep Off Pounds Sensibly is for members that have attained their goal in the T.O.P.S. program and now must keep the fat and flab forever lost. Aside from the prestige of being a K.O.P., members that reach this level of dieting stardom also enjoy special club privileges like extra cash bonuses, more precious medallions and other prizes.

But let that extra chocolate cupcake throw the scale over just an extra 1/4 pound as a K.O.P., Gregory said, and the honors and esteem earned go right down the drain - K.O.P.S. membership is revoked.

T.O.P.S. members generally pay 75 cents each week and $12 yearly dues. Meetings are conducted about once each week and are open to men and women ages 8 and older.

OVER EATERS ANONYMOUS

CALORIES and the scale are terms considered taboo, however, for the members of another local dieting group which term obesity as a disease and deal with their problems likewise.

Thelma Chausse of Westland is a member of the Westland Chapter of Overeaters Anonymous, which is a part of the national organization fashioned after the larger and more popular Alcoholics Anonymous. Chausse reported that club members know each other by first names only and follow a structured program that doesn't involve counting calories or facing the scale at meetings each week.

"The first thing for our people to do is to lose weight. They follow our food plan which is based on nutrition," said

Chausse. "We don't count calories. We find out why we're eating when we're not hungry."

"We don't talk about the scale or what kind of diet we're on. We talk about what happens in our life, what is causing us to eat."

The group meets once or twice each week. Meetings feature guest speakers and a large distribution of literature as well as discussions and social interaction about members' problems, lifestyles and diets.

The group uses a textbook prepared for the Alcoholics Anonymous program and follow 12 steps to losing weight, 12 steps that base the success of a diet on members helping one another and garnering spiritual and religious help as well.

O.A. members must admit that they are powerless over food and believe that a "Power greater than ourselves could restore us to sanity." They must admit to themselves that they have a problem, similar to a disease, and agree to reveal their problems through written and verbal testimonials.

In addition, members are encouraged to call upon God's help to aid in their drive to lose weight and agree to spread their message of physical fitness to others who are over-weight.

Although most members suffer from obesity, Chausse said, very thin people, bulimic and anorexic members are also a part of O.A. Chausse said that many of the O.A. members have tried the other clubs -

Edna Mae Gregory

Weight Watchers and T.O.P.S. - and are resorting to O.A. as a last attempt to remedy their health problem.

"A lot of the people come into this program as their last hope. It's a lifetime program. You change your way of thinking and the way you deal with stress and problems," Chausse said.

To meet their goal of losing weight, O.A. members use the telephone and other "tools" as aids. When tempted to eat that extra piece of Black Forest Torte inside the refrigerator, O.A. members are encouraged to call upon a fellow member to "talk them out" of doing so.

The group is open to both men and women and teenagers. Dues are by donation with meetings conducted once or twice each week.

And according to Chausse, it's an element of caring and companionship that makes O.A. members successful in their diets.

"That's what I try to get across to new members - caring. It's the caring and sharing that are very important for us as well as the support for each other," Chausse concluded.

Vincent helps keep Grand Prix secure

By JOHN KIBILKO
ANP Staff Writer

When John Vincent attended his first Detroit Grand Prix, he bought a photo pass and tried to get as close to the action as possible. That was 1982. Today, Vincent is a member of the Grand Prix Association and is involved year-round with committees and fund raisers.

Quite a workload for someone who supposedly "retired" last year.

"I like the Grand Prix," Vincent said. "I love cars and I love people. I guess I am a car enthusiast, although I wouldn't say I'm really a fanatic."

This is Vincent's fourth year as a volunteer at the race. He used to patrol the track as a circuit marshal, a kind of goodwill security guard who policed areas adjacent to the track.

"It was a long, arduous task," Vincent admitted of his work as a circuit marshal. "It was my job to control traffic around the race track. There were a lot of hours involved."

Vincent no longer works the race as a circuit marshal, although his position now entails just as many hours and more year-round activities. Vincent handles public relations for the Grand Prix Association, disseminating race literature and doing a lot of pre-race politicking and committee work. Vincent explained the philosophy of the association.

"You sign up and you get to, well, work," Vincent chuckled. "It's a lot of people who love and care about racing trying to pull this thing off. But our credentials allow us to move about pretty freely. We can even go into the pit area before the race."

Vincent explained that work for the Detroit Grand Prix V, which runs June 20, 21 and 22, doesn't end Sunday when the Formula One World Championship is concluded.

"No, the work's not done when the race is over," Vincent said. "The Grand Prix Association is a year-round organization. There's over 1,300 members, and we do a lot of volunteer work and fund raisers throughout the year."

So what's the payoff? Does Vincent actually get to see the race?

"Oh, yeah," Vincent said. "I have a great view of the race. Like I said, I love cars and I love people. And there are so many people, from all over the world. It's an exciting weekend. I love it. I'm glad I'm involved."

Author charms Van Buren folks

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Author William X. Kienzle made his second appearance in the Belleville area on Saturday when he spoke at the Van Buren Township Hall as a guest of the Friends of the Fred C. Fischer Library.

Kienzle recalled that he had visited the "thriving metropolis of Belleville" on a previous occasion, and during his rounds of public appearances had talked to "everyone in Michigan at least once."

The author, who has written a best-selling mystery each year since "The Rosary Murders" was published in 1979, is a former priest. Kienzle was ordained in 1954 and spent 20 years as a parish priest. For 12 years he was editor-in-chief of the Michigan Catholic newspaper. After leaving the priesthood, he edited a magazine in Minneapolis and later became director of the Center for Contemplative Studies at the University of Dallas. He and his wife, Javan, now live in the Detroit area.

Kienzle, who has lived most of his life in Detroit, uses the city as his background and many of his characters are thinly-veiled representations of local personalities and church figures. All of Kienzle's mysteries are ultimately solved by a detective-priest, Father Bob Koesler, the fictional character who now is the center of a mystery of his own.

The author discussed the research involved in the writing of his books, particularly the researching of the world of professional football which was the setting for "Sudden Death". Kienzle went behind the scenes to interview the Michigan Panthers, when they were based in Pontiac, to learn the jargon of the players and to "smell the locker room."

Next April, Father Koesler will delve into the mystery of the murder of an unpopular critic in "Deadline for a Critic."

But, the biggest mystery of all may be whether or not the detective-priest, created by Kienzle, will survive the movie version of "The Rosary Murders," which just finished filming in the southwest side of Detroit.

To ensure the integrity of the priest in the film, Kienzle had stipulated that the screenplay should not compromise the basic character of Father Koesler. A court battle is now being waged in Wayne County Circuit Court to determine whether Kienzle can examine the script to determine whether his fictional character has been compromised in the film.

Kienzle reported that last week the film-makers were given the option of allowing Kienzle to see the screenplay or posting a $125,000 bond. When the filmmakers chose to post the bond, rather than to let him see the script, Kienzle said "it reinforced my fears."

The author explained that the compromising of the character in the film could jeopardize future Father Koesler books. Kienzle said that he may have to abandon his popular detective-priest and create a new character "if Koesler is destroyed by the movie."

A decision is expected to be reached on June 25 or 26, Kienzle said, with release of the film slated for Thanksgiving or the first of 1987.

Kienzle, a library booster, told the audience that he considers libraries as important to a community as its police and fire departments. Maybe more, he said, since those services can be contracted from other units of government.

One of his greatest thrills, he said, was seeing his works in the library.

Library board members involved in the program were Dolores Temple, president; Ginger Brude, vice-president; Dorothy Smith, treasurer, and Joyce Ennis, treasurer. Other board members are Elton Gollwitzer, Fonie Butler, Doris Roe, Pattye Van Buren-Craig and Connie Ryckman.

Any young woman, between the ages of 17 and 20, who has never been married may enter the pageant. Judging will be based on poise, personality and general appearance.

The winner will receive her crown, a dozen roses and a trophy. She also will receive a $100 gift certificate. Prizes also will be awarded to the first and second runners-up.
